

Trisigma Spain S.L. is hiring

Test Engineer(s)

40 hours/week

Organization

Trisigma performs type approval and test services for a wide variety of international gaming manufacturers, with the objective to provide market access to a fast growing number of countries. We carry out the activities from our head office in the centre of the Netherlands and new test lab in the area of Barcelona.

Profile candidate

We are searching for new colleagues in our office in Rubí, who are eager to learn a new exciting job in a growing and well-organized company.

We are looking for candidates with FP or engineering in technical computing or electronics, with knowledge in C, C++, Java programming. A person who is able to work independent and communicate comfortably and professionally in Spanish and English. Healthy curiosity in computers and technology and relevant knowledge and work experience with modern programming languages certainly applies.

Experience in the gaming industry / game testing is a plus.

The position

As a Test Engineer, you and colleagues test that gambling and associated systems meet legal requirements. In addition, you examine products by means of software research, performing game tests and statistical measurements. You have contact with the client on a daily basis.

Our offer

We offer our new colleague:

- A responsible and attractive position in a growing organization starting in Spain;
- A challenging discipline in a very interesting and creative market;
- A well-facilitated internal workout and qualification period, with training on the job;
- Market-based salary with flexible working conditions.

Information and application

Are you interested in this position or would you like to apply directly?
Please send an email to jobs@trisigma.es.

More information you will find on our website: <http://www.trisigma.es>